Preceptors

The Faculty of Agriculture, Life and Environmental Sciences appreciates your interest in offering placements and learning experiences for our dietetic students.

Who can be a preceptor?
Registered Dietitians must supervise students in clinical nutrition areas. Other professionals who are interested in providing training for dietetic students are encouraged to discuss learning opportunities with us. We currently work with a diverse group of preceptors including:

- Registered Dietitians working in traditional areas of practice
- Registered Dietitians working in non-traditional areas of practice
- Health care professionals
- Food service and management professionals
- Business professionals
- Community development professionals
- Educators

Preceptor Training
The Internship Team within Dietetics Specialization offers training to all preceptors using a variety of learning approaches including in-person sessions, electronic learning and interactive discussions. This training is offered at no cost to preceptors and can also be used to meet the Continuing Competence Requirements of the College of Dietitians of Alberta. For more information, please contact:
