Lessons:

Lessons are taught once a week for 11 weeks each term. If you are unable to attend one of your lessons, it is your responsibility to inform the instructor - either directly or through the Administrative Assistant for Fine Arts (ph.780-679-1532) - prior to your scheduled lesson time (ideally at least 24 hours ahead of time). If a medical or other emergency prevents you from attending a lesson, you are responsible for presenting evidence of the same. Instructors are not obliged to give make-up lessons if attendance is not acceptable. Final marks will be affected by student attendance. You, in turn, will also be notified should the instructor be unable to teach you. It is, therefore, important that the Fine Arts Office have up-to-date information about where or how to contact you.

Four (4) unexcused absences from your lessons will result in an automatic cancellation of the remaining lessons in your music performance course and you will be assigned a failing mark in the course.

If, for some reason, you wish to drop lessons/withdraw from your commitment to the University Applied Music Program (UAMP), you must speak to your instructor about your plans, and you must notify the Fine Arts Office. AFTER notifying the appropriate people, you will be responsible for dropping the course yourself in the Bear Tracks system UNLESS you are attempting to withdraw after the September “drop date” in which case you must see your academic advisor in order to withdraw (Bear Tracks will not allow you to do this on your own). [Please note that dropping after the September UAMP/conservatory meeting is to be avoided at all costs and we ask that students undertake lessons and a commitment to them for the year with all seriousness as there are unwelcome consequences for the UAMP/conservatory when students drop after lessons have begun.]
