“We are the largest (accounting) education institution in Alberta with about 250 of our students embarking on careers in accounting each year. We are ready to offer the full CPA program as of the Fall academic term 2013 with no disruption in our students’ education programs.

We have examined the education requirements and made adjustments. The merger of the three accounting designations into one combined CPA Canada preserves all the strong features of the CA education program and introduces some enhancements.

We are proud to see that the CPA program also takes features of the education model developed in Western Canada - including the CA School of Business (CASB) program - and leverages them on a national basis.”

“The 2013 Deloitte Energize Your Future conference put on by your Business Students’ Association was among the best I have ever attended. Not only was their list of speakers and breakout sessions incredible, they carried the whole day off on time and without a hitch. It was a true learning event that even seasoned professional managers with ten year’s experience would find hard to duplicate. Above all, watching how much people, like Dean Joseph Doucet, care about their students tells me that this is a special place to be a part of.”

“I have been encouraged throughout the duration of my degree to seek opportunities that challenge me in unconventional ways. While on exchange to Lille, France, the opportunity to form a sailing team of international students, none of us with actual sailing experience, was presented to me. Our diversified team took sail under the guidance of a veteran skipper, placing 12th out of 20 boats in our category. This year, the 45th sailing cup took place April 19-27th in Brest, France. It serves as France’s largest informal recruiting session during this time, bringing together over 3,000 participants and 10,000 visitors. The support of the Alberta School of Business and JetPro Consulting were key to enabling our team’s participation.”

EXCELLENCE
David McLean’s research addresses an important component of development - financial markets, in particular, equity markets. His work spans international work on equity issuance, investor sentiment, business cycles, precautionary savings, market liberalization, and an exploratory look at creative destruction via the lens of financial markets. While the importance of these factors in country level development is widely acknowledged, David’s work has won acclaim for providing empirical support for many of these theories.

RELEVANCE
The Dianne and Irving Kipnes Chair in Finance and Development will study why some countries are rich and others are poor, of how the development of national economies relates to the development of their banking systems and financial markets and of how these affect the strength of private property rights, checks on government corruption, and the strength of democracy.

CONFIDENCE
The ultimate goal through the Chair is to develop effective policy options for raising standards in low income countries.

Shared Irv Kipnes: “It’s about helping people help themselves through globalization and connectivity.”

We greatly appreciate the generosity of socially forward-thinking Dianne and Irv Kipnes.
