WHY INDIGENOUS LITERATURES MATTER:
READING (AND TEACHING) BEYOND
WRECKONCILIATION

PROF. DANIEL HEATH JUSTICE
(CHEROKEE NATION)
CANADA RESEARCH CHAIR IN INDIGENOUS LITERATURE & EXPRESSIVE CULTURE, UBC

ALSO FEATURING: READINGS BY LOCAL UP-AND-COMING INDIGENOUS AUTHORS!

MARCH 8, 2018, 3:30 PM
HUMANITIES CENTRE L-1
UNIVERSITY OF ALBERTA, EDMONTON

Daniel Heath Justice is a Colorado-born citizen of the Cherokee Nation. He works on Musqueam territory at the University of British Columbia, where he is Professor of First Nations and Indigenous Studies and English and holds the Canada Research Chair in Indigenous Literature and Expressive Culture.

How do we learn to be human? How do we become good relatives? How do we become good ancestors? How do we learn to live together? These are questions, argues Daniel Heath Justice, that Indigenous literatures take as central—and pose to their readers as well. This talk welcomes new audiences to Indigenous literary studies while offering more seasoned readers a renewed appreciation for these transformative literary traditions. Justice's book, Why Indigenous Literatures Matter, is newly available from Wilfrid Laurier University Press.