

POST-2012: CHANGE OR CONTINUATION IN THE EU MIGRATION POLICY?

with AGNIESZKA WEINAR, Migration Policy Centre at the European University Institute, Florence.

European Neighborhood Policy was overhauled in 2012 following a series of dramatic events developing in EU's neighborhood. One of the policy areas most influenced by the changing global context was migration policy. But has EU migration policy in the neighbourhood changed indeed? The talk will present evidence and arguments explaining the nuances of change/continuity in the European migration policy towards its neighbors, give a historical perspective on the core set of European migration policy tools, and analyze their recent developments, also in the light of the current inflow of Syrian refugees.

Agnieszka Weinar has a Ph.D. in Political Science from the University of Warsaw. Her research has focused on international dimension of migration policy and more specifically on Europeanization of migration policies in the context of enlargement. Before joining the Migration Policy Centre at the European University Institute she was a researcher and lecturer in migration studies at the University of Warsaw; she also worked as a policy officer on migration issues in the European Commission. Her current research interests address external aspects of EU migration.
