Glenora Medical Clinic

Glenora Medical Clinic is a physician owned and managed clinic located in west central Edmonton and is a member of the Edmonton West Primary Care Network. The on-site collaborative team includes a psychiatrist, chronic disease management nurse, pharmacist, behavioral health consultant and a panel manager. Off site, there is access to dieticians, a low risk obstetrics clinic, a lower limb assessment clinic, an exercise specialist, social workers, and several different patient education classes. An electronic medical record is used exclusively in the office and there is access to Netcare and the internet. Macintosh laptops are used by all team members.

Off-site learning opportunities include nursing homes, house calls, palliative care, and an after-hours care clinic.

The clinic has a wide variety of patients in all age ranges from mostly urban and suburban areas. There is the opportunity to see patients with acute issues, as well as with chronic conditions. The medical home model has been embraced. The clinic frequently pilots new initiatives.

Glenora Medical Clinic’s mission statement is:

TO PROVIDE QUALITY CARE IN A POSITIVE ENVIRONMENT

Clinic Preceptors

Janet Craig, MD, CCFP, FCFP, Associate Clinical Professor

Wendy Dawson, MD, CCFP, FCFP, Clinical Lecturer

Janet and Wendy act as co-preceptors to medical students and family medicine residents. This gives learners the advantage of learning from two physicians with slightly different patient panels, outlooks, and interests. Janet’s interests include access and continuity improvement (Alberta AIM), teaching, MSK injections, prenatal care, newborn care, women’s health, minor office procedures, and physician health. Wendy’s interests include prenatal care, newborn care, women’s health, endometrial biopsies, intrauterine device insertions, minor office procedures, and teaching.
