Rehabilitation Medicine Students’ Association (RMSA)

The Rehabilitation Medicine Students’ Association (RMSA) is the sole official representative body of the graduate students in the Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine at the University of Alberta. The RMSA exists for the purpose of providing students with opportunities for involvement, leadership, and professional development.

UA尔berta Mental Health Hub

Students experience a variety of stressors and challenges that are particular to academic life. When considering these demands in a larger context (i.e. personal and work life), mental health can become an area of struggle for many students.

If you are feeling particularly stressed, there is always help. Visit the UA尔berta Mental Health Hub at mentalhealth.ualberta.ca for more information about mental health impacts, as well as links to community services and supports.

Marketing & Communications

The Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine’s communications department is located in 2-28 Corbett Hall. The communications team is in charge of enforcing the Faculty’s visual identity, including logo usage and correct colours on all promotional materials, social media, presentations and the website. Among other things, the communications team also handles the production of branded swag items.

Programs

There are five programs offered in the Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine:

- MSc in Occupational Therapy
  Occupational therapists (OTs) help people get back to meaningful everyday activities. They work with people of all ages who have experienced an illness affecting physical or mental health, an injury, or a disability starting early in life.

- MSc in Physical Therapy
  Physical therapists or physiotherapists (PTs) keep people active by helping them prevent and manage the effects of congenital diseases, illness, chronic diseases, neurological conditions, accidents and the stresses and strains of everyday life.

- MSc in Speech-Language Pathology
  The role of a speech-language pathologist (SLP) is to identify, assess, treat, manage, educate and help prevent language, speech, voice, fluency, cognitive, and other related communication disorders, as well as swallowing problems.

- MSc and PhD Rehabilitation Science
  Rehabilitation Science is an interdisciplinary field of study that integrates knowledge from the basic and clinical sciences to improve our understanding of human movement, physical function, and disability across the lifespan and to improve outcomes of people of all ages.

Student Scholarships

There are various awards and funding opportunities available to students in the Faculty of Rehabilitation Medicine. You can find a list of available scholarships, along with application instructions, at uab.ca/FRMSR.
